FOREWORD

As my very good friend Tom Cook remarked some years ago the trouble with looking at old manuscripts is that one thing inevitably leads to another. It does, and here are another ten musical maggots together with dance instructions most of which are suggested by the original text.

The exceptions are The New Allemand, Wooburn Abbey and The Scrutiny, where the dances were made up to use the tunes. Seven sources have been used, Thomas Wall's Manuscript of 1764, Thompson's Compleat Collection Vol. III and Vol. V, Nathaniel Kynaston's 24 Dances for the year 1711 and 1716, The Compleat Dancing Master (Walsh 1718) and an unidentified collection of dances in the Vaughan Williams Memorial Library.

Two of the tunes will be familiar namely The Russian Dance and Buskin. It seems to me that The Russian Dance is a 6 strain sequence and the version given is suggested by Thomas Wall's Manuscript in the Ashover Collection and also by the instructions in Thompson's Compleat Collection Vol. III. Another slightly different version is given in an unidentified collection, and yet another in The Preston Collection. Both the Thompson and unidentified publication use the same tune but the Wall Manuscript tune seems to be unique and I have been unable to find it in any early printed form.

Buskin came to my notice while working through The Compleat Dancing Master for 1718, during 1982. Purcell's tune is a gem and the dance as given here is a triple minor version of my original interpretation. However Bernard Bentley had already published the dance in the Fallibroome Collection so it was not included in my earlier books. There is no suggestion that this is the "correct version" but I believe it does the tune justice.

I am again indebted to the many dancers who have sometimes unwittingly, helped in working out the dances, to the musicians often having single line melodies presented to them at fairly short notice and yet have made the dancing possible, to Wild Thyme for their expertise in working out the arrangements and for producing the cassette, and Pam who has patiently unravelled my notes and made them readable.

CAPTAIN TOM

The dance in its original form was probably a triple minor. By compressing it to a duple minor the long rest period at each end of the set is eliminated and the neutral couples at both ends of the set are involved at some part of the dance.

During A1 (5–8) a neutral couple at the top should dance 3 changes of a circular hey with the 2nd couple from the set below who have just moved up. In A2 the neutral couple (now progressed) temporarily become a 1st couple and step back and cast up to their neutral place allowing the 1st couple to dance the L.H. star with their own 2nd couple.

A neutral couple at the bottom of the set will be involved in the 3 changes of a circular hey A1 (5–8). They should then step back, meet and lead down to their neutral position. They will not be involved in the L.H. star A2 (5–8).

The neutral couples at both the top and bottom of the set will be individually active during the B music.

When there is not a neutral couple at the bottom the 1st couple should turn 2 hands during A1 (5–8) finishing proper ready to rejoin the dance at A2.

THE BRITISH TOPER

Set dance for 3 couples

A1 While the 2nd couple move up the middle to top place the 1st couple cast and dance a double figure 8 with the 3rd couple who start by casting up.

A2 Repeat with 2nd couple starting the movement from the top and the 1st couple moving up to their original place proper.

NOTE: The 2nd couple should start their cast into the double figure 8 as the 1st couple move up the middle to top place so that the 3rd couple do not have to wait for them. This will ensure that the 2 double figure 8s become one continuous movement.

B1 1st couple cross over and dance round the 2nd couple who move up. 1st couple lead through the 3rd couple, cross and cast up to middle place proper and turn 2 hands once round.

B2 1 – 2 Mens wall, Womens wall i.e. 1st man lead out 2nd and 3rd man while 1st woman lead out 2nd and 3rd woman (2 steps then bend the line).

3 – 4 Men circle L. half way round while women do the same finishing in lines of 3 a double apart with 1st couple in the middle.

5 – 6 All set forward R. and L. into lines close together.

7 – 8 All turn single. (Set is now 3.1.2.)

Repeat whole dance twice more.
